About the young person:

C aged 18 really likes horse riding, swimming and loves music. C requires support to meet all her care needs. C has significant learning, physical and communication difficulties and requires consistent support, intervention, and medical care for all her support needs. C is mobile but has limited verbal communication. She makes use of some basic signs and communicates by vocalising, pointing, and using a communication aid.

Overview of role:

As a PA, you will be involved in supporting her both in the home and the community. During the morning you will help C get ready for school, this will involve assisting her with showering, getting dressed and eating her breakfast, as well as making sure she has everything required for the day. You will then take C to school which is about a 5-minute drive. In the afternoons once you have collected C from school, you'll assist with her evening routine and therapy programs that have been set by her therapists. You will be required to give her medications that she requires. A key area of focus will be to promote C's independence, supporting her with prompting, as well as physically helping her to eat, get changed for bed and to assist her with personal hygiene.

As C's Carer, you will work within the family home and the local community, following all areas of her care plan, ensuring her independence is continually promoted, and work alongside his therapy team to deliver therapy programmes such as physiotherapy, OT, and SALT. Using a flexible and adaptable approach, you will encourage and facilitate C to participate in age-related fun and educational activities. This role will involve manual handling, assistance with personal care, engagement in play and education, light household duties, and meal prep.

What's great about this job:

A truly rewarding role supporting a lovely young lady in a loving family home. This job will suit someone who is has lots of energy and who is able to motivate C. You must also be confident, reliable, and organised. Mum really appreciates people who are upfront and honest, so this is an important trait to have for this role.

Please apply in writing only, sending your CV to raeshepherd2@googlemail.com

Pray about your own approach to worship in Church.

We will continue to live stream from St. Mary's if you are not ready to visit one of our church buildings.
